

Subject: XOOPS.org feedback & suggestions

Topic: Xoops Foundation, just 1 year! So what?

Re: Dèjà-vu

Posted by: EyeKeeper

Posted on: : 1145381267

URL:

well...

it hasn't been the first time I see this discussions going ahead/on...

We know Giba always tries hard to make himself understood, his English isn't quite good... but with a little bit of good will and understanding we can understand the essence of his questionings... but I'm not there to defend or to claim for anything...

I just see that many things move worse once people take this project serious when they don't need to do it so much...

I think that development and new guidelines should be kept straight and serious or such a project will die in short.

But what's wrong to ask for a module that already exists and that should be used anywhere or in one of the official support sites around the world?

Maybe it's difficult to access the ftp folder and download and compact the modules 'cause life is too busy... even when download works in background...

No problem at all... the good thing about XOOPS is that is not made by one unique person but by so many sometimes unknown...

that's my point of view!

RedEye

Admin of XOOPS Brasil Brazil